workplace injuries

You may have options beyond workers' comp

Someone injured on the job may be under the impression that workers' comp is their only avenue for compensation. In general this is true, but there are a number of exceptions.

For example, if you were injured by a defective product, a products liability lawsuit against the manufacturer may be a possibility.

If a toxic substance caused you harm, the manufacturer might be subject to a toxic tort lawsuit. There are generally two kinds of toxic injuries – acute, which are apparent immediately; and latent, which may take years to appear. A worker may be able to file suit against the manufacturer of the toxic substance and/or any manufacturers of safety equipment that proved to be ineffective.

You might be able to bring a personal injury lawsuit against your employer if you were injured due to their intentional or egregious conduct. If your employer doesn't carry workers' comp insurance, you may be able to file a civil court action against them or collect money from a state fund.

If a third party is responsible for causing your injuries, filing a personal injury lawsuit against them is an option.

If an injury is disabling and prevents you from working, you may also be eligible for Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI and SSI).

Workers' compensation in the form of temporary disability or permanent disability payments is usually quite low and doesn't provide anything for pain and suffering. There are no punitive damages to punish the employer for dangerous conditions or poor safety measures.

If you are injured on the job, consult Corradino & Partners, llc with an experienced attorney to safeguard your rights.

guarding lives in the water

Many drownings and water-related injuries occur at home and in private pools; others at unsupervised lakes, ponds, creeks, or beaches. However, even at community pools, beaches, water parks, and aquatic centers that are manned by lifeguards, tragedies enter the equation, sometimes due to lifeguard negligence.

Legitimate lifeguards undergo 25–40 hours of training to achieve certification, which generally lasts for two years, upon which time lifeguards must take recertification classes. Hiring an uncertified lifeguard to protect the public is illegal.

Lifeguards can be found liable for swimmer injuries if they fail to properly supervise swimmers. They must always be vigilantly scanning the pool area and respond promptly when needed. If they abandon their post without someone filling in or are distracted by talking to others or texting on their phones, precious time is lost. Drowning can occur in less than a minute.

Lifeguards are also responsible for enforcing pool rules, reporting hazards to maintain a safe swimming environment, and preventing overcrowding.

A lifeguard's delayed response to an incident or failure to use their training to provide adequate medical care can make them liable for a swimmer's injuries — for example, utilizing an automated external defibrillator incorrectly, or not at all, or removing someone from the pool in dangerous fashion that leads to a head injury.

Sitting in the hot sun all day can cause drowsiness or fatigue in even the fittest lifeguard. The lifeguard should request a break and step aside for a qualified replacement.

Most lifeguards do an admirable job, but there are times when a lifeguard — or pool owner, operator, or municipality — is negligent and liable for a swimmer's injuries. the rockets' red glare

Fireworks can be spectacular, boisterous, entertaining ... and hazardous. In 2024, per the CPSC, 14,000+ Americans visited ERs due to fireworks-related injuries; 11 died. America's 250th anniversary celebration could spur even higher numbers.

Reasons for injuries include:

Improper handling: Failing to follow safety instructions, holding fireworks too close to the body, trying to relight "duds," and aiming fireworks at people are but a few examples.

Lack of supervision: Young kids left to their own devices can send injury rates soaring. Even small fireworks, such as sparklers, can cause severe burns when mishandled.

Defective fireworks: These may have more power than anticipated, explode prematurely, or misfire. Anything from fuses to casings to improperly mixed chemicals could be at play.

Illegal fireworks: They're illegal due to their high potential for injury, their unpredictability, and lack of safety regulations in their locations of origin.

Environment: Setting off fireworks too close to bystanders, buildings, or trees; lack of barriers; lighting fireworks in dry conditions; and not accounting for wind conditions can lead to injury.

A few tips to keep your celebration safer:

- Check local ordinances pertaining to fireworks.
- Purchase only fireworks labeled for consumer use (not professional use).
- Don't allow young children to ignite or play with fireworks.
- Light fireworks one at a time, then move back quickly.
- Never try to relight or pick up fireworks that fail to ignite.
- Follow all fireworks instructions; heed all warnings.
- Keep a bucket of water or garden hose handy.

If you or a loved one suffers injury due to the negligence of a fireworks manufacturer, event organizer, property owner, retailer/distributor, pyrotechnician, or other entity, contact Corradino & Partners, LLC to protect your rights. ■

lime-garlic chicken kebabs

Serves: 6; prep time: 20 min.; cook time: 10 min.; total time: 30 min.

The perfect dish for your Fourth of July BBQ or any kind of entertaining!

Ingredients

- 1½ lbs. chicken thighs or breasts, boneless and skinless
- 4 Tbsp. fresh lime juice
- 2 Tbsp. cloves garlic, chopped
- 4 Tbsp. extra virgin olive oil
- 1½ tsp. sea salt and
- ½ tsp. freshly ground pepper
- 1 tsp. cumin seeds, toasted and ground
- 1 Tbsp. Greek honey
- ½ cup cilantro, chopped (optional)
- Skewers, metal or wood (if wood, be sure to soak in water for 1 hour)

Directions

1. Trim the chicken and pat it dry. Cut into 1½" cubes or cut it into strips.
2. Prepare the marinade by placing all the ingredients in a big bowl. Mix to combine.
3. To the bowl, add the chicken pieces and coat each one. Cover and refrigerate for two to three hours.
4. Thread the chicken onto the skewers. (If you have cut the chicken into strips instead of cubes, gently fold each strip over itself to form a 1½" cube).
5. Preheat the grill and oil the grates well. Grill the chicken for about 3–4 minutes per side. Using an instant-read thermometer, check the temperature to ensure that the chicken is cooked to 165°F. When ready, place the grilled chicken on a serving platter, cover loosely with foil, and let it rest for 5 minutes. ■
